With a note from Bradman "This memo is to certify that on his twelfth birthday I gave Richard Robins one of my Aust. XI caps. If he decides to sell it the auctioneers are hereby assured it is genuine". (Photo) $600,000 - $750,000

Provenance: Ex Richard Robins, Sir Donald Bradman's godson.

Richard V.C. Robins (1935-), played 60 First-Class matches for Middlesex & MCC 1953-62. His father, R.W.V. Robins played 19 Tests for England 1929-37. The cap has been on display at the National Sports Museum at the MCG since September 2003, following its purchase by private treaty from Robins, in England. While the museum was being re-built the cap was displayed at the Powerhouse Museum in Sydney and was the centre-piece of the Travelex Cricket Roadshow. It has never been offered for public auction in Australia or England, and has a current Australian Cultural Heritage Export Permit. The 'Holy Grail' - the last Test cap worn by the game's greatest player on the only undefeated Ashes tour by an Australian team.

Although cricketing adversaries, Bradman described the English Test all-rounder, R.W.V. Robins as his "best pal in the cricket world". He stayed with the family many times, while in England. Young Richard Robins recalled a visit by Bradman to his parents' home in 1953:

"I was a mad keen Australian cricket supporter, mad keen, and I didn't have an Australian cap. All I had was a green cap that my father had swapped with a South African player.....and I cut the Australian badge out of the tour itinerary and stuck the badge on the front of the cap. When Don saw this he said, "Why are you supporting Australia?". I said, "I've always supported Australia, Uncle Don." At that time England was playing Australia at Manchester. It was that famous Test match where Jim Laker got 19 wickets, and I couldn't stand the fact that Australia was beaten so badly. So I went into the garden where I'd rigged up my own pitch....and did my own bowling with my own commentary. Did my own match. And after the match.....apparently I walked into the drawing room where Don and my father were sitting and I said, "Don't worry about the match that's on television because Australia's just won in the garden with no trouble at all and I got all 10 wickets." He thought that was the funniest thing because I came in with this [home-made] cap on, he said, "Hey, you can't have that. You've got to have a proper Australian cap" and so.....the following year he sent me his 1948 touring cap."

The Cap is accompanied by several items of correspondence from Don Bradman to his godson, Richard Robins and his father:

- 2nd Feb. 1948 4-page hand-written autograph letter, signed "Goldie", stating he is about to announce publicly that he is available to play England in 1948. Says only sentiment is making him go, and that Robbie's encouragement had played a big part in his decision. Aside from family concerns he is taking a big business risk. Says he is not the player he was and is getting his runs mainly by experience; how he got ill last time he travelled; anxious that this tour will be the greatest success of all time.
- 20th May 1952 2-page typed letter, signed "Don", requesting he contact the Editor of Wisden to clarify how batting averages are compiled in their Almanack. Also discusses a proposed change to the rules regarding fast bowling.
- 6th Nov.1953 2-page typed letter, signed "Don", comments on retirements of Lindsay Hassett & Doug Ring; appointment of Keith Miller as captain of NSW over Arthur Morris; calls Barnes & Miller unstable chaps.
- 16th Nov.1956 3-page hand-written aerogramme, signed "Goldie", hoping his cap arrived in time for Richard's birthday. Wonderful news of Keith Miller's retirement. Craig made captain of NSW over Benaud, Burke, Davidson.
- 27th Aug.1958 2-page typed aerogramme, signed "Don", written on his 50th birthday, comments on the 1958-59 England team.
- 15th Feb.1995 Hand-written aerogramme, signed "Don", discusses cricket memorabilia, the Bradman Museum in Bowral, dislike of Michael Parkinson, two fellows currently writing biographies of him.
- 20th May 1996 Memo signed "Don Bradman" certifying he gave Richard Robins one of his Aust.XI caps for his twelfth birthday.
- 12th Nov.1998 Typed letter, signed "Don", expresses his pleasure on hearing the cap has been loaned to the Library for exhibition.

199 A DON BRADMAN CORRESPONDENCE: Excellent collection of correspondence from Don Bradman to Nigel Ward of Norfolk, England, who conducted personal research into Don Bradman's ancestry during the 1990's, comprising 49 hand and type written letters from Bradman dating from July 1990 to February 1999. The correspondence refers to Ward's research connecting Bradman's ancestors to two small rural villages - Bradenham in Norfolk, and Withersfield in Suffolk. He had traced Bradman's ancestors back to the 16th century in Bradenham and then onto Withersfield in Suffolk. Marriage records of Bradman's earliest known relative "show a marriage between Edmund of Bradenham and a local woman, he was obviously a poor labourer and had no surname, so they called him Bradenham. Over the years the name evolved to Bradman". Also references to the surname variation of 'Bradnam' and 'Bradman'. The letters refer to the research, Bradman's cricket and personal life from 1990 to just before his death in 2001. Bradman talks of "paying a visit to Withersfield in 1930 to see an old lady who claimed relationship but it was never proved" ... "I took a very poor view of the suggestion that my ancestors were deported for sheep stealing" ... "Life has been exciting in England with the downfall of Mrs Thatcher. I hope her successor is the right man for the job" ... "The English cricketers have started their Aussie tour, so far not impressive, and I think Australia will prove too strong" ... (Body-line) "It was a bitter series, no fraternisation between the teams, Oldfield was hospitalised after a terrible blow to the temple, Woodfull received an awful crack over the heart" ... "Boycott is so engrossed by Boycott and I greatly dislike people who have tickets on themselves. Humility is one of the finest virtues of a human being" ... "I'm appalled at the ineptitude of England. There must surely be better players in the County sides, the batting in the main, lacks character and the bowling lacks venom" (1993) ... "Our boy Warne has done wonderfully well - after all he is only 22 with little experience, yet he is economical and looks the best prospect for his age that we have had" ... talks of his collection of Wisdens and their value, often mentions golf & tennis, unemployment in Australia, South Africa back into Test cricket (1991), cricket matches in Australia, Cricket World Cup 1992, 60th Wedding Anniversary, Bill O'Reilly death, One-Day cricket in Australia, Larwood, throat surgery, drought conditions, Bradman's stroke, death of his wife (1998), etc.

All letters are dated and the majority on "Sir Donald Bradman" letterhead or aerogrammes. All letters signed by Bradman, either in full or by his first name. A comprehensive insight into the man, interwoven with his past cricketing career and snatches of his personal life in the 1990's. Very Good condition.

{"HOW SIR DON GOT HIS NAME FROM NORFOLK" by John Bultitude, "Eastern Daily Press", 6th July, 1998: He is universally acclaimed as the greatest batsman in history. But few realise that Sir Donald Bradman also has a Norfolk link. For years it has been a closely guarded secret that the Australian run machine has family ties with the village of Bradenham, near Dereham. That connection was made public yesterday with a special presentation to recognise Norfolk's honour of being bound with a sporting icon. The discovery was made by Norfolk man Nigel Ward, a cricket umpire and penpal of Sir Donald. Nigel first wrote to "the Don" while serving as secretary of Withersfield Cricket Club in Suffolk after hearing rumours that Bradman ancestors came from the village. Nigel said: "I wrote via the Australian Cricket Board and must confess I never expected a reply from this very private person as he has never discussed his personal life in public." Their pen-and-paper relationship created a unique sporting double as the two swapped anecdotes and cricketing stories. Nigel, aged 56 and of Swaffham, said: "I once suggested writing a book but he said if it was published he would never write to me again." Their close relationship continued in tandem with Nigel's research and he discovered Sir Donald's grandfather came from Withersfield. The Norfolk link was also unearthed at that time. Records dating from the 1500s show a wedding at Great Saxham, near Bury St.Edmunds, between Edmunde from Bradenham - earliest known ancestor of the Don - and a local woman. Nigel explained: "He was obviously a serf and had no surname which was the norm in those days." Yesterday Nigel presented the lineage of the Australian cricket legend to Bradenham Cricket Club in the form of a family tree, along with a signed photograph of the Don captured in a pose personally selected by the Australian cricket hero. But one woman was unable to attend the ceremony. Ann Smith, the Don's great-grand-daughter, who lives in the neighbouring village of Little Hale, was away on holiday. Although his quest has ended, Nigel continues to write to his famous penpal, albeit less frequently. "Since his wife died the letters have dropped off a bit," Nigel said. "I used to get them regularly but he is 90 next month and so he's sitting back. "He doesn't get to the cricket so much these days because he doesn't like the pressure from press, television and autograph hunters." } (Photo) $50,000 - $70,000

[A Pioneering Poster - The first poster to have a dramatic effect on how the Olympic Games were promoted internationally was issued by the Swedish Olympic Committee for the Stockholm Games of 1912, as part of a well-organised advertising campaign. The Committee, seeing it as an opportunity to present Sweden in a positive light to an international audience, organised a contest for the best design. Olle Hjortzberg's winning image represented a parade of nations marching towards the common goal of the Olympic Games. The first copies of the poster were printed in eight different language editions, but in response to repeated demands, the number of languages was doubled, so that eventually it was produced in sixteen languages, including Russian, Hungarian, Japanese, Turkish and Chinese]. - [Kevin J. Parry is a businessman from Western Australia, most noted for his backing of the Taskforce '87 syndicate which unsuccessfully defended the 1987 America's Cup in Fremantle, Western Australia. The defence cost over $20 million and built and raced three 12-Metre Class boats, Kookaburra I, Kookaburra II and Kookaburra III. In his younger years, he had been a noted Australian baseball player. He later established the Perth Heat baseball team as well as funding the first purpose built baseball stadium in Perth, Parry Field at Belmont]. (Photo) $5,000 - $10,000
